

The Storyteller

By

Margaret Nock, BFA, M.F.A., M.Sc.

September, 22, 2020

This document is the property of Margaret Nock, Six Sensory Being® and for non-commercial (personal) use only. Unauthorized reproduction in whole or in part, or distribution is prohibited. All rights reserved.

“It is not in the stars to hold our destiny but in ourselves.”

William Shakespeare

Forward

The following story is a metaphysically based creative account. It is meant to encourage the continuation of the storytelling tradition. In doing so, it can affect the future in a positive way. The Storyteller is loosely based on my time spent with my father Thomas, and the wisdom he shared for the future through storytelling.

We are all future ancestors and storytellers. It has been so through the ages and has become a wonderful resource for humanity in present time. We don't always realize the power within us. Our stories and the stories passed down to us, give us clues of what may come and guides us into deeper thought, feelings, and experiences. We live in a time of activation and awakening in order to bring about positive change for ourselves and others. It is written, to some degree, in the flow of multi-dimensional experiences occurring simultaneously in past, present and future across all frequencies and ancestral lines.

The Storyteller

What does it mean to be a storyteller? Dan Blank has summed up a beautiful assessment of the purpose of the storyteller in his article, “What does it mean to be a storyteller?”

“To be someone who has a story to tell and finds a way to share it.

Someone who keenly observes the world around them and turns what they see into entertainment or insight that can spread.

To craft a narrative – with a beginning, a middle, and an end; that counterbalances our experience of life that just keeps going from scene to scene.

To take the risk — the social risk — to share this story with as much authenticity as possible.

To do so when no one expects this of you, when it is above and beyond all else that is required of you in life.

This is what I have been thinking about for the last several months. What it means to be a storyteller.”

Source: Dan Blank Posted on June 3, 2016 (We grow media), What does it mean to be a storyteller?

Part I

Foundation: Keeper of the stars

January 5, 1920

“I see the moon and the moon sees me.” – Irish Lullaby

A star child enters Earth in the form of a human baby boy. He arrives in a small town located on the South Eastern Coast of the US. He was greeted by gracious and intelligent Earth parents who loved him immediately and were excited to meet him upon arrival. He was named Thomas and his parents had great enthusiasm for his future. They were delighted to see his beautiful clear crystalline eyes, alert and brimming with wisdom gained far beyond his age.

Thomas had a small birthmark on the back of his neck. Although, no real concern was taken by his parents or doctors, the birthmark would become something significant later in his life along with many synchronicities.

The New Oxford American Dictionary defined synchronicity as the “simultaneous occurrence of events which appears significantly related but has no discernible causal connection.” Thomas would experience many synchronicities and become a great storyteller, teacher and wisdom keeper.

As Thomas grew into boyhood, he began to discover his immediate small world around him. He delighted in playing and learning to fit into social interactions with other Earth children of different colors and from different economic environments, religions and expressions of family.

Thomas began to forget his origins as a star being and it would take him awhile to realize who he was and remember all the information he was given before his arrival. He was eager to learn more about all the Earth had to offer in the way of experiential exploration. As a star child, Thomas was eager to broaden his horizons daily. He continually soaked up useful information and observations within the safe micro world of childhood.

Thomas grew ever more curious as he noticed that there was a strange, to him, energetic exchange between people. He observed without judgment any adversity such as anger and sorrow. He also observed that there was also great joy and hope expressed through energetic exchanges. He wondered why the people around him didn't always choose joy and hope, as they were very capable of doing so. He would later understand more fully why this was so.

Outside of his home, Thomas took great notice of the different frequencies of people and animals. He quickly became adept at determining the difficulties life presented to those he encountered. The more Thomas observed, the stronger his ability to see the heartache, tragedy, and trauma within others, the more he understood. He began to understand more about the blocks of limiting beliefs, the fearful reactions and addictions which could shape a human life.

Thomas had been told, long before he arrived on Earth, that he would notice such energetic exchanges and perhaps choose to participate in the duality of light and dark himself. Duality was to be experienced and explored. It was one reason souls came to Earth in human form. Thomas had been told that the duality experiences would assist his development and awareness.

He was encouraged to use the expression of empathy and compassion toward adversity. His Earth experience would also be an opportunity to learn more about duality through experience. Thomas would also need to be patient with those suffering separation and fear as there was not full awareness on Earth regarding raising human vibrational frequency.

Over time, Thomas learned that he was one of the few, at that time, star beings who would prepare the way with wisdom and light for thousands, perhaps millions of people. He would assist those on Earth in the coming years and use storytelling regarding Earth's future. He was also told that Earth was very dense and it could be difficult to ward off emotional experiences and addictive and harmful behaviors. Nevertheless, Thomas was excited by the mission and was ready to grow older so that he could begin his journey in the macro world of Earth.

Thomas came into the world with full knowledge of his mission. He would have to forget for a while as he grew, figured out who he was, and why he came to Earth in the first place. This was an expected period of necessary human discovery. All souls on Earth would face the task in the future to remember who they were on a deeper level.

Late 1920's - 30's

The North Star

Thomas quickly grew into a confident, yet humble, young man. He spent a great deal of his time gazing up at stars and seeking answers of the universe. He began to move away from the knowledge he had acquired from his past life as a star being and was essentially learning all over again. He acquired excellent information and training from human guardians and guides along the way in the form of teachers and mentors. Thomas learned about the lost books of the Bible, the Akashic records, Ley lines, stars and planets, Earth grids, the Mystics and Enoch's visits to heaven in the form of travels, visions and dreams, and his revelations. Thomas also developed his ability to utilize lucid dreaming and was inspired by the Mystery Teachings that his early teachers had encouraged him to pursue. These teachings anchored him to the Earth as he began to question more and more about human existence. He often looked to the heavens for the North Star for reassurance.

Thomas diligently learned to navigate the spectrum of life lessons that all humans on Earth experience. He would help others through the thread of wisdom he received as a student through discovery, patience, myth, stories, enthusiasm and awareness.

Early in his young adult life, Thomas became interested in the law and became proficient in his studies. During his development, he learned to question everything. This could be quite annoying at times, for those who did not want to be questioned, but the process was necessary for his growth. He would gain more understanding of higher concepts regarding, not only the law, but also relationships, inner wounding, and solutions to heal suffering. He saw the law as one way to help people.

Thomas observed the various ways to look at problems and solve them. His favorite way to observe any problem or troubling situation was by first observing a scene and any emotions he had for the situation. It was an exercise he would use often.

Next, he placed himself in the experience of a silent observer, detached from emotion while viewing the situation. This would take a few minutes and then he would move to the next experience, which was the person(s) involved. He then stood in the shoes, so to speak, of the other person(s) involved in a situation. He felt with empathy and an open heart. He listened closely to a person(s) point of view during the exercise.

Thomas would go back and forth for a while to discern complete understanding as he searched for a solution. Thomas then turned to the higher self and attuned to what it had to offer. The attunement with the higher self often led to deeper understanding and compassion as emotions were cleared along with any harsh judgment. The higher self, it seemed, was always correct when it came to the resolution of any problem.

“It's what you learn after you know it all that counts.” John Wooden

A new period of awareness was the beginning of understanding duality in a deeper sense within his practice. Thomas realized that life was not black and white and that there were many gray areas that existed between the lines Thomas sought truth in every situation he encountered while also learning that truth was elusive and difficult to pin down at times. Truth would vary from person to person through belief systems and perspective. Over time, Thomas learned that the human race was complex, yet simple, violent, yet loving, compassionate, yet judgmental, passionate yet complacent. During this period of growth, Thomas relied on his teachers, guardians and guides to teach him how to use and trust his intuition, exercise and critical thinking. He would need to trust inner guidance and learn to consider the inner work a valuable tool for self-awareness and survival on Earth.

In the future, Thomas would utilize his experiential experiences to help others who were unable to recognize their own inner wisdom and beauty.

Thomas and his family managed to keep their modest home during the Depression years, unlike many other people. Everyone began to notice quickly that there was less money available and some became fearful. The idea of lacking money or any other resource was an eye opener for Thomas as he felt abundance should and could be available to every life on Earth.

He later learned from one of his many guides through a lucid dream that yes, abundance was already available to everyone, but only a few people realized it at that time. Those few people were the ones who had the awareness that life didn't always have to be difficult. Resources were always available. Those few knew how to excel in whatever way chosen. He learned, through his lucid dreams state, why more and more people would awaken to the idea of abundance. They first had to awaken to their own dreams.

Thomas walked through his dreams and saw his neighbors and many people he didn't know yet, awakening and helping others do so. One by one they were passing on a light of awareness that would one day spread across the world through healing practices, and awakening experiences for his descendants.

Memories of ORION

“The Orion constellation is one of the brightest and well known constellations in the night sky. It lies on the celestial equator. Orion has been known since ancient times. The constellation is also known as the Hunter, as it is associated with one in Greek mythology.”

At some point in life Thomas knew that people would have to ask this question themselves if they were dedicated to service to self or service to others?

December 7, 1941

Second World War

Warrior Simulation to Ignite Awakening

The US became involved with the Second World War on December 7, 1941. The catalyst for this was the attack on Pearl Harbor. This shocking attack frightened and angered many citizens at that time.

“The attack on Pearl Harbor served to unify American public opinion in favor of entering World War II, and on December 8 Congress declared war on Japan with only one dissenting vote. Germany and the other Axis Powers promptly declared war on the United States.”

www.history.com

Thomas was a graduate of Benedictine Military School. He finished his college work and went to study for the Bar at his father’s law firm, Gazan, Walsh, and Bernstein. He passed the Bar in 1941 and was called to duty in 1942. Thomas then began his service in the Army and became a Lieutenant. He transferred to the Air Force and became a navigator and co-pilot. His first assignment was to instruct other navigators. He quickly became a natural teacher of navigators at Pan American Airways or Pan Am, as it was called. His knowledge of navigation and the planes themselves was very useful to the crews preparing to go overseas.

His next assignment was with the United States Army Air Forces (USAAF) would be as a navigator. He flew 300 hours over what was known as Burma at the time, India, China, India and Egypt. His base was in Assam, a state in northeastern India, situated south of the eastern Himalayas along the Brahmaputra and Barak River valleys. Thomas navigated the Himalayas, a very dangerous route, transporting needed soldiers and supplies and was one of the few men to return from that area of flight alive due to the weather, mountains and enemy fire.

Thomas received orders go to a base in Assam, a state in northeastern India, situated south of the eastern Himalayas along the Brahmaputra and Barak River valleys. The planes were unarmed and heavily loaded transport planes. During these flights, one of the citations said, "He was exposed to enemy fire which was probable and expected." The transport planes were often targeted throughout the arena of the world because of the war. Thomas would later receive the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with an Oak Leaf Cluster earned for extraordinary achievement with the troop/supply carrier command.

While in that arena of war, Thomas also spent time in Egypt and had a huge awakening regarding his origins. Learning this new information led to a difficult processing period of growth and made him feel lonely. He did have some fellowship with fellow airman in both the USAAF and RAF and celebrated with them after difficult trips resulting in war time victories. These brave men were all affected by the war even if it didn't show on the surface. They did miss their girlfriends, or wives and children and especially their way of life before the war.

They received letters, pictures, and news from home as often as possible and would soon realize that, if they made it through the war, life might not be the normal they remembered.

They looked forward to happier memories and stories to share when they returned home. The camaraderie was important, as were the missions. Thomas always had several funny and antidotal stories to tell. He became the groups storyteller as they attributed his story telling ability to his Irish decent. They noted that if you stopped to say good morning, Thomas would always have an amusing story.

Thomas was also a wordsmith. This skill was helpful with communication, writing and an addition to his repertoire of entertainment. Thomas was beginning to be himself more fully and express his funny side and humor regarding life. He learned that he didn't have to be stoic and serious all the time. His humor was especially appreciated during the long hours of waiting for orders and new missions. There were also the hard times when a pal and fellow airman did not return to base.

In the service, Thomas learned the importance of family in a more profound way. He quickly realized they were all family and brothers in war. They would remember this time together. Some would share memories and stories to the next generation to understand more about their experiences. Some stories would be wildly funny, while others would be filled with sadness.

It was a time of great duality, strength and endurance. Their war experiences would be documented and celebrated while other war experiences later in the 20th Century, would cause division, fear and protests. People were changing. The outcome would bring about a different experience as their future unfolded into outrage, shortages, Petro dollars and lies.

“Robert Louis Stevenson describes how there is a good and an evil side to everyone's personality, but what is important is how you behave and the decisions you make. The choices people make determine whether a person is good or not.”

Thomas' father died during WWII from an epidemic of tuberculosis while in a hospital in Asheville, NC. He was unable to go home for the funeral. This event caused great sorrow as he wanted to be home with his Mother and two sisters, but it was not possible.

“September 2, 1945 - Day the Japanese delegation formally signs the instrument of surrender on board the USS Missouri, marking the official ending of World War II

Thomas began to focus on his new civilian life. He continued to study at college when he returned home. Over time, he learned to understand more and more about the untold Earth history that was hidden, cosmic energy and how to manifest and create the current life purpose to its fullest potential.

His attention to the inner work and discovery was needed and led him into even more exploration. The dedication to exploring, what could sometimes be difficult, helped him become a wise advisor, and mentor. Thomas became more aware that past wounding could be healed. He was living a life of service to others rather than service to self. He often sought creative ways to bring much needed support to those he served and continued to be of good humor even though, deep down, he was often serious and quiet. Thomas was the great grandson of German and Irish immigrants of the 1800's and he often attributed aspects of duality to his upbringing. Nature and nurture became another aspect of his personality, along with duty and service as he matured.

1950's -70's

“The game is afoot.” William Shakespeare

Dis-ease, discovery, rockets and space

After the war years, Thomas went home to work in his father's law firm. His work ethic and seriousness, tempered with humor, storytelling, curiosity and imagination proved to be an asset.

Thomas was a wonderful dancer. He felt that dance raised his spirits and the steps came quite easily to him. During his high school years, all the girls flirted with him and sought to dance with him. He had also dated debutants and attended dances and cotillions with them. Thomas didn't really care for the ceremony of society, but he did enjoy the dancing.

During three decades of challenging times, Thomas witnessed a great civil unrest and a battle of light and dark for the planet and all living beings. The wisdom Thomas received earlier in life about current events during that period led him to an understanding of the density of Earth, the social programming throughout society and the lost identity of the self.

He recognized the filters and barriers humans endured and became aware that it was time to move from the warrior experience into the explorer experience for future evolution. As a future ancestor, the arrival of a space initiative and a race to the moon captivated his imagination.

It was time to venture into space and he was very excited with this new initiative to explore the galaxy.

Dance was also something important to a pretty young and smart young woman Thomas met after he came home from the war. He soon met and married Frances, a beautiful, smart, accomplished young woman. Thomas and Frances were a good match and soon created a family consisting of a boy and two.

He now had a family of his own to care for and love. Thomas fully realized the powerful importance of love. The love of self, love of others and how important love was to understand in service to others.

Thomas taught his youngest daughter, a star child herself, about the cosmos. They spent many nights stargazing at the local beach. He taught her everything he understood of Earth and beyond. He brought her books on astronomy, Edgar Cayce, Akashic Records, Dead Sea Scrolls, and the Book of Enoch.

During many starry nights, his star child listened to him read aloud mythical stories, poetry, and sang songs passed down through the ancestral line. Thomas taught his star daughter that she was an ancestor of the future and how she lived and what choices she made could also affect events across time, dimension and space. Most of all, he wanted her to be aware that, like all humans, she was also multi-dimensional. It would be important to remember for the future. She would later relay to others, a message of hope and a greater understanding of the divine human connection.

The nature of words not said and lucid dreams left behind.

Thomas, the ultimate storyteller of time, space and dimension spent his last year walking in nature in Asheville, NC. Thomas completed his time on Earth, to the sadness of many he had loved and served. There were many things he wanted to say and share with his daughter, now a young woman, and many things left were left unsaid. He knew she would be the one out of his three children who would pass on knowledge to more star children of the future. There would be many more star children coming soon to Earth and they would need help with their awakening truth and process.

These souls would be the ones she was yet to know and serve. His star daughter would now be one of many souls who would be of service to others. She would not feel lonely anymore and discover a new way to connect to other star humans, truth tellers, and teachers across the world.

Thomas knew his star child, now a young woman, would find a path to continue the thread of knowledge he had given her through the heart space. Her doing so would result in a path of service for herself that others would seek. He also knew that, as a future ancestor, she would witness the great dawn of a new age of evolution and awakening. It would be a time of light, darkness, disclosure and exposure, inner wisdom, duality and the need to return to all things natural in the world.

Artwork by Margaret Nock

Duality in Nature

(Negative/positive, dark/light and where they meet in between)

Watercolor, Pencil and Pen

Asheville, NC. August 2020

Part II

The Keeper of Light

In Greek, Eleanora means light and the following is her story.

Eleanora, the daughter of Thomas and Mary enters the Earth world in September, 1958. Her energetic body was coded with the indigo frequency and color. She would soon begin to exhibit signs of an awakened child and was often called Eleanora by her father as they had had a past life together as brother and sister. From now on, Margaret will be known known as Eleanora. She had chosen wise parents who would guide her through difficult situations and to better help her understand the society programming and her purpose on Earth. Eleanora was a natural truth seeker and sayer. This was not always a good trait to have within the society at that time, especially if you were a child. but Eleanora's parents were willing and able to support their child and nurture her as much as possible as she also had the sensitivity along which was often labeled as a rebellious attitude and behavior. Eleanor was simply on the spectrum of Autism which was unheard of at that time. She was fully aware and able to function and learn in her own way and time. Light, sound and frequency were somewhat of a problem when she entered school. School felt dense, sad and Eleanora often became the silent observer in her classroom. She was not being stubborn as teachers thought and they mulled over what to do with her. She would soon find out later that every experience, unpleasant or happy was just that – an experience by an infinite being of light.

Eleanora grew and experienced the “normal” childhood activities. She was also aware of the seen and unseen by others, around her and often around other people as well.

Her father had talked to her and helped through that period of childhood going into the teen years and helping her adjust to any ability that came up at the time. Always confidential and not to be spoken of was something he stressed for her to keep in mind. Thomas would remind her that this would not be forever, just until people became more aware of the higher awareness. It would be easier, at that point, to share the experiences she was having with those who were close to her. He spoke of community and partnerships that would help bring her into alignment with her own mission. And there were the guardians in light as well as human guardians that would step up to assist Eleanora throughout her life.

The knowledge that she was not alone helped her to relax and feel safe along her journey. She would one day offer clients of the future wisdom to help them with anxiety during the extraordinary opportunity in Earth history that was unfolding.

2020 Current Day

Awakening: Unfolding of Exposure and Discloser Emerges

Memories of ORION

Have you asked yourself if you are dedicated to service to self, service to others or service to both? If you are reading this, you are most likely ready to create and serve others in a balanced manner which includes nurturing your own mind, body, and spirit. It's time to step onto the path of golden bright light of service to others, fully prepared and willing to grow with your practice.

As a multi-dimensional being of divinity, allow your imagination to jump ahead in Earth time to 2020 for further understanding of the awakening. If you are reading this, you are most likely ready to create and serve others. It is time to step onto the path of golden bright light of service to others.

As the storyteller of Eleanor's life, it is important to let us jump ahead in Earth time to the pivotal 2020 point as Eleanora is now an adult. She is fully activated and aware of who she really is and why she is on the planet in 2020. She would much rather you know and understand why the storyteller is so vital in 2020 than any more about herself. Much of her past has been healed and most of the inner work is complete. She has one more important mission. She would much rather you know and understand why the storyteller is so vital in 2020.

Eleanora is going to take her place as a Spiritual warrior of truth and light in the battle of darkness and duality. It was a tall order, but a necessary event in order for evolution rather than revolution. A time of discovery, unity consciousness and community rising up together during an awakening of truth.

Elenora felt as if she was on a runaway train at times as she found her voice and stood in her power and sovereignty. She was now armed with the light of the infinite, the wisdom of the storyteller and the keeper of light. She embraced the light fully and felt lighter as layer after layer of past life, ancestral patterning, and malicious AI coding fell away from the unnatural matrix and new codes filled her with light. The organic matrix was restored. Firewalls dropped away to make room for the DNA strands to activate fully for all that would be willing to do their inner work, be kind and in service to others.

In doing so, the evolution would begin and grow. In a few years, perhaps sooner, the new Earth would form and a new age of enlightenment would usher in new technology, information and community. We would have a fuller understanding to achieve unity consciousness. There would be many teachers, healers and thought leaders to lead the way. They would all be contained the radiant heart center, be wise and courageous because they were also free and inventive. Life would change right in front of our eyes and we would cry and feel the love of the infinite without the filters that were placed in us long ago. It would not be perfect, but it would be a happier time filled with possibility. Disputes would be resolved peacefully. Women and children would feel safe in their homes, schools, and streets. We would grow healthy food and share it, others would have specialties that would also help the community and no one would steal as people would have what they needed. Everyone would be free to travel and learn more about the planet and everyone living on it. Eleanora knew and felt in her own radiant heart that this new Earth would be possible to achieve. She had listened to the stories passed down by her father and read the books, both old and new, she experienced and understood duality, the seen and the unseen realms, and everything in between. Eleanora held the frequency of love and had expanded awareness and she was able to inspire others who would soon live in a higher awareness where the new Earth was possible.

One of the ways she helped was to create meditations, prayers and invocations. If it had not been for Thomas, she would probably not have been able to do so. You see, Thomas held space for her to learn the stories well and to grow with all experiences that she would encounter. This is how she knew what to do in present day Earth.

The storyteller within her had become activated because of him. Many others would also discover the storyteller within themselves and much of the current events would be documented. The wisdom from the storyteller was this: "You do not need saving." came to her in a lucid dream and sounded very much like her father.

Eleanor trusted this message and spread it to others as a beacon of hope and light. A message to diffuse the darkness. We had the power all along within to create the new Earth.

Eleanor developed, with the help of the council of light, a powerful invocation which she would give freely to the world.

The process would clear, cleanse and restore all who listened to or read the invocation. The process would only require an open heart and a willingness to accept the healing. Many would hear and read the invocation and receive the activation to help them move into the frequency of unconditional love and help bring in a new Earth experience.

During the invocation, the rain and thunder began as all resistance would come up from the ego. Once the invocation was complete, the sun seemed brighter and the air seemed clearer. Layers of doubt and suffering released and Eleanora slept well that night.

Tomorrow would be a new beginning and opportunity to plant more seeds of light and lead the way to healing. The creation of the new Earth was no longer as difficult to achieve.

The following is what Eleanora was asked to write:

An invocation prayer for release of non-organic coding

Dear Father- Mother God, Goddess, the Source of our being, and all the Ascended Masters, please know that we are grateful for the radiant galactic sun of enlightenment that you bestow upon Earth.

Thank you for the chance to begin again by helping us step into and surround ourselves in your loving light, wisdom and peace. Please stand by us as I call upon the highest most loving angels to surround us now and clear, cleanse and remove all non- organic coding that is embedded in my energy fields and within the physical body.

Please remove and negate and release any error codes, back door monitoring, and false programming enslaving mankind across all times, dimensions and ancestral lines. Please help us eradicate the control and subtle attachments of entities of AI, Archonic frequency, false gods and those who would oppress humanity. We ask you to send them home with a divine spark of your light. We pray for them and forgive them as the Christ consciousness flows through us and we realize that they were, in some ways, helping us see our need to do our inner work more fully, to stand in our power and light as we grow even more spiritually through the experiences.

We also forgive the humans who supported the darker agendas as we know some were trapped in darkness. We forgive all the way around and hope that they receive the help that they will need to turn away from such control and enslavement. Help them to grow to understand more consciously and recognize their part in facilitating some of it themselves.

Dear Metatron and all the Archangels we ask you to continue to support humanity as we step into our supreme awareness in order to evolve and grow spiritually. Please step forward now to help us pass through the distortion and trauma of this year help us move away from the dark firewall and move us into the organic matrix that is divinely inspired. Help us remember being part of the collective of true divine selves.

Help us to return to the conscious awareness of beauty, strength, and our missions along with our capacity for love, empathy and unity with all that is and will ever be.

We ask that you please continue to help all humans stand in the power and light of sovereignty, help with and oversee the activations that we will experience as whole beings of light moving upward through the spiral and reclaiming our divine crown, our unity, our freedom. Please help us all to recognize and stand in the light with our galactic brothers and sisters who have been working behind the scenes on our behalf in order to help us evolve remain safe as we go through this awakening process.

We love them and respect them and their mission during the awakening process. May those who may decide for some reason, they are not ready to awaken, be assisted and held in your light of everlasting awareness. Please help them know they will not be judged and help guide them to transmute any negative darkness around them if that is their will. Dear Father- Mother God, the Source of our being, Angels guides and helpers, please hear us across all manner of frequency, space, time, and dimension as we ask to be complete and restored to the frequencies of love and higher. We are so very grateful for your help, wisdom and guidance. Thank you. Amen, Amen, Amen.

Eleanora's thread of hope and light has been passed on in the storytelling tradition to reach the future ancestors, heal the past, and support the future timeline which is the most positive timeline possible created by those who had been sent to Earth to assist the Awakening. It is up to all of us to live in the present while sending support to our future ancestors and storytellers.

Present timeline wisdom: The story of 2020 is reverberating and splitting into different timeline realities as it has already happened, while happening. The outcome of the 2020 experiment depends on how well we accept ourselves as multi-dimensional beings of consciousness, how much we are willing to embrace unity consciousness, and how we accept and honor ourselves and everything and everyone on the Earth.

Sources

Image for William Shakespeare quote, Casey Horner, unsplash.com

Shakespeare quotes source, brainyquote.com

Dan Blank Posted on June 3, 2016 (We grow media), What does it mean to be a storyteller?

wegrowmedia.com/what-does-it-mean-to-be-a-storyteller/

“I see the moon and the moon sees me.” – attributed to Meredith Wilson, US 1953 (P/O lullaby)

Irish origin, pg. 1

wikipedia.org United States Army Air Corps

www.bbc.co.uk, RAF

www.bbc.co.uk/bitesize/guides

www.history.com “September 2, 1945 quote, pg. 13

Robert Louis Stevenson Quote on Good and Evil, Goodreads.com

www.findagrave.com/memorial/158900687/thomas-francis-walshgeneology

www.savannahnow.com/article/20080311/NEWS/303119910

www.sheknows.com/baby-names/name/eleanora/

Biography

Margaret Nock, a knitwear designer, is an author of two books Knit1fortheroad and Knit Knitavian Style which includes interviews, blurbs, insight and inspiration. Margaret has done many interviews online and in writing of crafters throughout the industry since 2007. She has also written for the Australian craft magazine, Mix Tape® 2007-08. Margaret is currently the creator of Six Sensory Being® an online Metaphysical service which includes a variety of 1-1 Sessions, Email Services, Attunements, and Workshops.

Margaret's Education: Georgia Southern University, 2 years. She has a BFA and MA from SCAD and a Bs from UMS and is a certified professional channel and psychic medium.

Margaret has also participated in the Cope Yale University testing, Windbridge Research Center, and is a member of the Forever Family Foundation. Margaret is also currently a student at Metaphysics University and continues to study and grow with her understanding of both the seen and the unseen worlds.

Margaret spends most of her time with her husband and Yorkie, Madison. She also travels when possible and continues to knit, hike, and dance as often as possible. She can be contacted through her website, SixSensoryBeing.com.

Thomas (1920-1980)

Lt. Thomas F. Walsh, Jr.
Savannah Airman,
Back From Burma

LIEUTENANT WALSH

(Special to The Bulletin)

SAVANNAH, Ga.—First Lieut. Thomas F. Walsh, Jr., of the United States Army Air Force, recently visited his mother, Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, in Savannah, after serving fifteen months as a navigator and co-pilot in the China-Burma sector.

Lieutenant Walsh returned home with the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with an Oak Leaf cluster, earned for extraordinary achievement with the troop carrier command. The Savannah officer, while participating in operational flights, totaled more than 300 hours in unarmed, heavily loaded transport airplanes. During these flights, one of the citations says, he was exposed to enemy fire which was probable and expected.

Before going into the Army, Lieutenant Walsh was connected with the law firm of Gazan, Walsh and Bernstein, having been admitted to the bar in July, 1941. A graduate of Benedictine Military School, he entered the service in January, 1942, later transferring to the Air Force.

Based in Assam, most of his flying time was put in over the mountains and hills of Upper Burma and China.

Lieutenant Walsh is the son of the late Thomas F. Walsh, and a nephew of the Right Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, Bishop of Charleston.

Eleanora is also real as she is a multi-dimensional part of Margaret and is responsible for bringing light language and love into the world. She was integrated and reunited with Margaret in 2015 in order to assist and support the awakening process. She is seen and felt by Margaret as a completely fluid, spiral of indigo light emitting wisdom and kindness.